BRYAN AND TOWNE BY ACCLAMATION.

Populist National Convention Ended Its Session Early This Morning.

STORMY SCENES LAST NIGHT.

Attempt to Defer Naming the Vice Presidential Candidate Precipitated a Lively Fight-Great Enthusiasm.

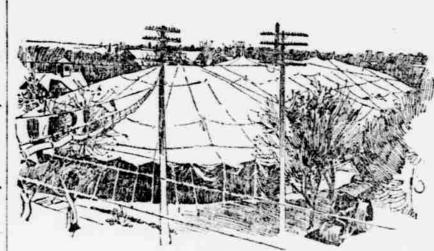

Trusts the Age's Evil. Trusts the Age's Evil.

Trusts the overshadowing evil of the age, are the result and culmination of the private concerning and control of the three great instrusions of commerce—money, transportation, and the means of transmission of information, which instruments of commerce are public functions and which our forefathers declared in the Constitution should be controlled by the people through their Congress for the public welfars. The one remedy for the trust is that the ownership and control be assumed and exercised by the people.

We further demand that all tariffs on goods controlled by a trust should be shollshed.

Senator Allen of Nebraska stepped forward. "Mr. Chairman," said he amid perfect allence. "I move that the rules of this convention be suspended and that William Jennings Bryan he nominated by acclamation for President of the United States."

Amid the din that followed Senstor Allen's motion and its seconding the speaker's voice was faintly heard calling on those delegates who favored the motion to tise and remain standing.

As one man the convention rose. Hats, cases umbrellas and flags were waved in the air amid leafening cheers, the uproar being increased by the band playing "Old Hundred."

"I announce the remination by a manimous vote of William Jennings Bryan for President of the United States," said Chairman Patterson as soon as he could be heard.

Real Fight Started.

"The next thing on the programme," said Chairman Patterson, "Is, according to the rules adopted, to take action regarding the nomination of a vice president."

Instantly there was confusion. The one point upon which the convention could expect a fight was before it. There were found cries of "Petitgrew," but the chair recognized E. Gerry Brown of Massachusetts, who moved that the convention proceed to mominate a candidate for Vice President by ballot. There were numerous seconds from the body of the convention, and Senator Butler of North Carolina made a seconding speech from the platform.

Washburn of Massachusetts offered an amendment to the motion of Mr. Brown that five names be selected as men acceptable to the People's party, and that a committee be sent with these names to confer with the Democrata and Silver Republicans at Kansas City on July i, with the understanding that the name selected at that conference should be the nominee of the People's party for Vice President.

Then came a long argument over amendments, and thereon became tangled up in a maze of parliamentary proceedings.

Mr. Brown of Massachusetts offered to withdraw in favor of the Simpson amendment, substitutes, amendments to amendments, and thereon became tangled up in a maze of parliamentary proceedings.

Mr. Brown of Massachusetts offered to withdraw in favor of the Simpson amendment his original motion of pushing the convention to a vote, but a point of order was raised that the motion had been made the subject of debate and could not be withdrawn. The point of order was sustained.
